

AMENDMENTS TO THE CLAIMS

Claims 1-46 (Cancelled)

47. (New) A rewindable flexible film for obtaining structurally stable objects, said film being associated, at least in those regions where the obtained objects are required to be substantially rigid, with a structurally transformable substance which is inert with respect to said film, and with at least one modifying agent of said substance, said agent being activable by the administration of non-ionizing energy, being inert with respect to said film and to said substance when not activated, and starting a structural transformation of said substance when activated.